

Bio-Data:

S. Revi Sterling focuses on the role of Information and Communication Technologies in gender empowerment strategies for developing regions. She is currently developing custom hardware and software solutions to engage women in community radio and is conducting fieldwork in Africa. Prior to this, she worked at Microsoft for ten years, most recently in Microsoft Research's External Research Program where she championed Microsoft's gender equity efforts in higher education, including testifying on gendered pipeline issues before the US Congress in 2005.