

Madhu Ranjan works as an Education Specialist at the United States Agency for International Development. She has long years of experience as a development professional. She feels very passionately about Education. She has been a teacher, a teacher educator, a trainer, and has managed and advised the Education portfolio of several prominent social development agencies including the Rajiv Gandhi Foundation, Catholic Relief Services and USAID. Her present assignment at USAID has allowed her to engage closely with her partner EDC to work towards effective use of a variety of education technologies for improving classroom transaction in elementary schools of several states in India. Holding a post graduate degree in Child Development from Delhi University, she has also been intensively engaged in assignments related to children's rights, and that is her other passion.